

REMARKS

In the above-noted Office Action, the Examiner has rejected Claim 6 under 35 USC 112, second paragraph, the Examiner contending that the term “computer storage medium” set forth in Claim 6 is not clearly defined in the Specification.

In response, Applicant submits that the term “storage media” is clearly defined at page 4 of the Specification beginning at line 15. In particular, the paragraph indicates that the invention can be readily accomplished using a computer system “in software (stored either in SITU on a computer, on storage media or at a server foot transmission to such a computer) or a combination of both. That is, to a person skilled in the art, the term “software on storage media” would be well recognized as meaning any medium in which software could in encoded for reading by a computer. Persons skilled in the art know that such a medium could be magnetic, or optical storage medium. In this connection, in order to provide further clarity, Applicant has amended the specification to specify the following:

“As is well known in the art, storage media is any storage medium, e.g., magnetic or optical, that may be accessed (read) by a computer including volatile or non-volatile storage media; and removable or fixed storage media.”

In this connection, Applicant submits that the added language is not necessary, and does not add new matter since it merely provides a definition for the term “storage media”, which definition is a definition well-known in the art. Such addition is provided for the Examiner’s convenience, but, if preferred by the Examiner, may be deleted.

Applicant appreciates the Examiner's indication of allowability of Claims 1-3, 7 and 8. However, in view of the foregoing response, Applicant submits that all claims pending for examination, namely Claims 1-3 and 6-8 are in condition for allowance, which early Action is requested.
